Frankfort, Ky. Nov 6th 1849

Dear Brother

I am sitting right here in Mr. Shields Hotel, Frankfort, Ky. having nothing in particular to do I thought I would just drop you a few lines. You see I have left Danville. You know I am one of the wondering Nomads. I thought when I wrote to you last that I would be in Louisiana now. But I have not got that far yet. Fortune or Tom Treadway has decreed that I shall remain in Ky a while longer. You see the good people who employed me in Danville thought they paid me too high wages, & as I was engaged to them for only one session (20 weeks), they contracted to let me go at the expiration of that time. They, however, made no objection to my teaching, but said they were perfectly pleased with it, & gave me recommendations to that effect. Well, while I was hanging around Danville "seeking whom I might devour, I chanced to jump on to a man by the name of Washington, who lives in Breckenridge Co. 50 miles below Louisville. He is a member of the Convention which is now sitting here for the purpose of making a new Constitution. He was up at Danville on a visit to his friends & was making enquiries for a teacher. My good friends sent him after me. He gives me the same that I got in Danville. I am on my way to his home in Breckenridge Co. I was sorry to leave Danville for I liked the place very much.

I attended the Convention to-day & the most important characters there are, Garret Davis, Ben Hardin & Charles Wickliffe, Past-Master General under John Tyler.

To-morrow I go to Louisville & then to Brandenburg on the river below. I shall be 12 miles from the river.

Do you write as soon as you receive. You must direct your letter to "Clifton Past Office, Breckenridge Co, Ky." I have not time to write any more to-night. Give my love to all.

Your affectionate brother

Steve
